Resilience Asia : Finance for Agile and Secure Trade” Window (POWERR Asia FAST Window))

Main Points of the Financing Conditions

1. Eligible Projects

The following projects in Asian countries (including Pacific Island countries; the same shall apply hereinafter) and Middle Eastern countries (*1) (*2)

(1) Support for Japan’s procurement of crude oil, petroleum products, etc. (including imports of oil, petroleum gas, natural gas, and mineral resources, as well as projects involving the acquisition of interests)

(2) Emergency financial support for Japanese companies facing funding needs arising from the impact of the situation in the Middle East (including shortages and price increases of crude oil and petroleum products, as well as increases in logistics and electricity costs), as well as emergency financial support for foreign companies supplying critical materials, etc. that contribute to strengthening the supply chains of Japanese companies

(3) Support for energy diversification and industrial advancement (including projects related to renewable energy generation, energy efficiency, and low-carbon alternative fuels that contribute to reducing dependence on fossil fuels)

(4) Support for the development of energy supply and infrastructure (including projects implemented by oil- and gas-producing countries that contribute to easing supply-demand constraints and diversifying supply sources, the restoration of production capacity of crude oil and other facilities in Middle Eastern countries, and storage infrastructure implemented by energy-consuming countries)

(*1) The geographical scope of support for Japan’s procurement of crude oil, petroleum products, etc. includes regions other than Asian and Middle Eastern countries.

(*2) Eligible projects do not include projects deemed inappropriate from the perspective of Japan’s economic and national security interests (such as projects in countries subject to Japan’s sanctions and those that could hinder coordination with allied and like-minded countries).
